

RETURNING CONFIDENCE.

The New York city papers say money is pouring into the banks from the country faster than it can be counted. In many of the banks all the tellers can do is to tear the wrappers from packages to see that they contain money and then put them in the vaults until they have time to count the contents. Many of the packages contain gold coin. The banks would gladly let the treasury have their gold coin if they could get gold certificates or legal tender notes for it, but the treasury has no available bills of any kind to exchange for gold.

The same papers that contain this cheering intelligence were instrumental in causing the panic of last July and August by persisting in the assertion that the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly by the government was draining the country of its gold. Instead of encouraging the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem the treasury notes issued in payment of bullion with silver dollar, and to coin silver out of the bullion to supply the dollars, as the law authorized him to do, they insisted on the immediate repeal of the Sherman act. They charged the financial stringency to that act, overlooking the fact that banks had failed in Australia by the dozen, where the Sherman act could not possibly affect them. They prevailed upon the President, who seems ignorant of the existence of the great country west of the Mississippi, to convene Congress in extra session for the express purpose of repealing the Sherman act.

Congress convened and, though it has been in session nearly two months, the Sherman act still remains on the statutes. The Wall Street combination, composed of about equal numbers of Republican and Democratic Congressmen, backed by the power of the Administration, has not been able in that time to pass the bill for which it was called together. The people see a Democratic Administration relying upon Republican support, in a Congress both houses of which are nominally Democratic, to pass its measure, the repeal of the Sherman act.

Who, but designing politicians who care more for office than for principle, will deny that Republicans and Democrats have formed a combination in the interest of the gold trust of Lombard street and Wall street, to force the single gold standard upon the country, that the trust may further pile up its wealth at the expense of the public? The fact that confidence is being restored and that the security of money and of employment resulting from the suspension of silver coinage and the closing of the mines and not the purchase of a few million ounces of silver, is the cause of the depression, has been made so apparent by the debates in Congress that the goldbugs are no longer able to attribute the panic to the Sherman act.

THE GOLDBUG OUTCRAZED.

The goldbugs may be numerically stronger in the Senate than the silver men, but the latter are by far the ablest strategists. They feel that their cause is just and the masses of the people are with them. This inspires them to heroic efforts in the great battle for the money of the Constitution.

Congress was convened in extra session August 7th for the special purpose of repealing the bill purchasing clause of the Sherman act. The President, in his message, made a special plea for repeal, and attributed the financial and business depression, which was causing banks to suspend, forcing railroads into the hands of receivers, closing factories and workshops and driving business houses into bankruptcy, to the act requiring the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly. The House of Representatives, which some years ago was supposed to be the bulwark of the masses against the aggressions of the classes, promptly, in compliance with the wishes of the President, passed a repeal bill by a decisive majority. This majority, which comprised the Wall Street combination, consisted of 113 Republicans and 112 Democrats.

The repeal bill, having passed the House, went to the Senate, the American House of Lords, as it was derisively termed some years ago. There the people had more friends than in the House, and there the repeal bill remains with less prospect of its passage than six weeks ago. The Senators from the West and South are making superhuman efforts to defeat it. They endeavor, by argument, to win recruits from the Wall Street combination, and failing in this are overcoming numbers by able generalship. It is now conceded that the Silver Senators have the advantage, and if they maintain their ground this week they will be able, when the Federal Elections bill reaches the Senate, to prevent a division on the Voorhees repeal bill at the special session.

If the repeal bill does not pass both Houses and become a law during the special session, it will have to be reintroduced in the House again at the regular session of Congress, and may never become a law. By January the States of Montana and Wyoming, both of which are for free coinage, should have full representation in the Senate by filling the existing vacancies and strengthening the Silver forces. Washington should also fill the vacancy from that State with a Silver Senator, but as the Legislature has a Republican majority of 34 on joint ballot and that the party is in the Wall Street combination to defeat all legislation favorable to silver, there is not much hope that it will send a Silver Senator to Washington this winter.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

The Teller Resolution Adopted—Discussing the Repeal Bill.

WASHINGTON, September 28.—The resolution offered by Teller, asking information as to the anticipation of interest on Government bonds since 1880 was taken up.

Voorhees said a compliance with the resolution would involve great labor. He asked Teller to define the scope of that part of the resolution asking "under what circumstances" the interest had been anticipated.

Teller said that the new administration was installed largely because its party found fault with the financial policy of the Republicans. He assumed that it meant a radical reconstruction of the financial policy of the country. He did not see how the party in the next campaign could ask the support of the people unless it dealt with the monetary question, and the repeal of the Sherman act was not dealing with it. Teller expressed amazement that Republican Senators should tie their hands by voting against resolutions calling for information. It was never denied during a Republican Administration. There was now an attempt to refer such a resolution to the Committee on Finance, and it was well the interest of the dominant party would be best subserved by their remaining there.

The resolution was adopted. The repeal bill was taken up. Hoar read an editorial from the Peoria (Ill.) Journal relative to the controversy to the part taken by Ernest Seyd of England, in the legislation of 1873. The Journal printed what purported to be a quotation from Hooper's speech in the House to contradict the letter of Seyd's son. In this quotation the words referring to Seyd, who is now here, were attributed to Hooper. Hoar read that part of Hooper's speech from the Congressional Record in which the words "who is now here," did not appear.

"These words," said Hoar, "were a deliberate, audacious, unscrupulous and infamous forgery." Callom of Illinois, knew the editor of the Peoria Journal, Barnes, and while he was astonished at the misquotation, and he was sure that Barnes was not personally responsible for the forgery in the sense of having committed or been cognizant of it.

Teller also knew Barnes and felt sure he could be guilty of no improper conduct in connection with the statement. AFTER THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

Oaklands Make a Midnight Raid and Undo the Work of the Railroad Company.

OAKLAND, September 28.—A mob of about 200 men very quietly went to the foot of Castro street, where C. B. Taylor, in the interest of the Southern Pacific Company, has fenced in the foot of the street, and forthwith removed the fence. Then the crowd went quietly home.

When C. B. Taylor was awarded the high land at the foot of Castro street by the courts he started in to fence that particular piece of property. In this he was first opposed by Fortin & Kendall, who claim the water front below the high land. They asserted that Taylor's fence would prevent them from reaching their property through what they said is a public street. Taylor declared the land is not a public street, but that he was willing, nevertheless, to leave gates in his fence. That settled the trouble of Monday, and Taylor built his fence and put a guard over it, the guard being paid by the Southern Pacific Company.

This was more than the people were disposed to endure. They had become tired of seeing streets fenced up and claimed by private parties. They feared that a fence erected in a day might require years of litigation to remove, and litigation has become unpopular accordingly. That was why the crowd quietly got together to-night and took the fence down without sanction of a court.

Landing of Japanese.

PORT TOWNSEND, September 28.—Fifty-six Japanese, two of them women, were admitted into this country to-day at this port. All of them established their right to land. They had an average of $40 each and informed the customs officials that they had come to America to better their condition.

Among them are farmers, laundrymen, servants and students. The steamer Empress of Japan brought them as far as Victoria, B. C. Several of the immigrants narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation. They were given quarters in a large room of the custom house all night. When the watchman arrived this morning he found all the gas jets in the apartment open, the lights having been blown out. The windows in the room happened to be open, hence there were no fatalities.

A Bedlands Contractor Shot.

REDLANDS, September 28.—J. W. Sutherland, a wealthy contractor of Redlands, was shot at 10 o'clock last night by Ed. Beebe, a bee-keeper. The men had been drinking heavily and started home in Beebe's buggy. Ten blocks out they got into a quarrel and Beebe fired a revolver, the ball striking Sutherland in the left eye. Sutherland is still alive and it is not known how badly he is injured. Beebe started for San Bernardino, and officers have left in search of him. Both men bore good reputations.

Come to Grief.

TACOMA, September 28.—M. M. Gray of West Hartleford, England, a ship-builder, drank heavily last night after winning $4,000 at roulette. He then returned to break the bank, but lost all and $2,400 in Bank of England notes besides. His wife and relatives were distracted. To-night he went out with $500 more, was robbed after getting drunk and was carried to his room at the hotel penniless.

Scheme to Light Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, September 28.—The Sacramento Electric Power and Light Company, has closed a contract with the General Electric Company for furnishing material and erecting a plant for the transmission of power from their works at Folsom to this city, a distance of nineteen miles.

WRONG AS USUAL.

The commissioners of Washoe county yesterday reduced the assessment of the Central Pacific railroad from $14,000 to $13,000 per mile and the unpatented lands from 15 to 12½ cents per acre. The Gazette says the reduction will take $53,000 out of the treasury of Washoe county.

The above is from the Elko Independent, which ought to have learned ere this that the Gazette Publishing Company's statements are not to be relied on. The fact is the total railroad tax in this county on a valuation of $14,000 a mile would not amount to $53,000. The valuation of the road-bed and rolling stock of the Central Pacific now is higher than that placed upon it by the State Board of Assessors.

His Old Pipe.

"Isn't that a rich color?" said a well known lawyer the other day as he held up a briar wood pipe of an almost ebony hue. Then he stroked it fondly with his hand and finally took to rubbing it with his coat sleeve. "It has taken me over a year to get a that pipe, and I don't think you can buy it now at any price. I used to smoke cigars—I do now to some extent—but I prefer a pipe when reading or working over my papers. You see a cigar is always dropping ashes and having things up. Then the smoke gets in your eyes when leaning over. But a pipe—oh, there is nothing like it for real solid comfort. My wife says this old fellow is getting dreadfully strong, but she hasn't the heart to ask me to discard it for a new one. See the way that rich color looks! That velvet looking black—and then the gloss that seems to have grown up from beneath the surface.

"Strange how a man should become attached to such a thing. But, on the other hand, think of the nights this old pipe has stood by me when I worried my brain over legal tangles, when I grew cross and irritable, how its sweet perfume has quieted and soothed me. Friends might forsake me and fat fees vanish into thin air, but my old pipe was ever at hand with its comfort. What a sense of calm contentment settles over me when the work of the day is done and I sit down in the library at home, with my wife and little ones about and this old fellow filled to the brim and going 'Why, hullo, the cares and worries of the day slip off and away with the curling smoke! Just look at that exquisite color!'—Brooklyn Eagle.

Rich Sap From Maple Trees.

The more uneven, rocky and ledgy the land and the drier the soil, except where cold springs abound, the better are the products of the maple. Trees standing in or near cold springs will discharge the most and the sweetest sap. I am acquainted with one tree standing by a spring, seven quarts of whose sap will make a pound of pure white sugar. The richness of this sap will be realized when it is remembered that it takes 10 quarts of average sap to make a pound. The black maple is the richest for sap of any variety. Our poorest sugar orchards give us about two pounds of sugar to the tree, while our best ones yield five and six pounds a tree. I have heard of a few extra orchards yielding 7, 8 and 10 pounds to the tree, and one extraordinary one that has yielded 10 pounds to a tree. The quantity of sugar that can be made from single trees in one season of six weeks at most will depend on many circumstances.

The more spouts put into a tree the more sap is obtained and the more sugar is made. From the tree already referred to as standing near a cold spring there were made 304 pounds in one season with two spouts, which emptied into the same tub. They were set in holes bored 14 inches deep with a three-eighths bit. Another tree I have known of yielded 80 pounds, and a third 28. Still another tree was tapped with 10 spouts, and 50 pounds of sugar were made, but it killed the tree.—Timothy Wheeler in Garden and Forest.

TRICKS OF TRADE.

Does Man Possess More Honesty than Woman?

There is a man who possesses a greater degree of honesty than woman is a mistake. That his dishonesty is different in kind and on a much grander scale is true; but this simply proves that he has, in obedience to the laws of evolution as controlled by environment, circumstance and his needs, branched out into newer and wider fields. However, if observation and comparison count for anything, he has not only all the dishonesty he ever possessed, but has vastly improved his capabilities in discovering new outlets for its exercise, while woman has, as a class, and in response to the same general laws, stepped into the field of petty larceny, which he has partly vacated. The lesser dishonesty of woman is not proved by the fact that she does, as a rule, steal articles of small value.

Business men rarely steal purses, for experience has taught them that there is usually nothing worth the taking in them, and the return of the article has brought a certain reward, either in approbation or something more substantial. However, if he be a groceryman, he goes to his place of business, and sells three different grades of kerosene oil from the same barrel at the highest market price, or disposes of as many different "qualities" of tea in the same way and with the same result. The butcher sells his customer a "porterhouse" steak with a T-shaped bone in it, which he cuts with great care from the shoulder of an animal. The cattle buyer from the country is usually "in with the weigher" in town. The man who has charge of the shipping business at railroad stations frequently makes his percentage on the sly (It is not stealing.) Nevertheless he receives a sum varying from one dollar and a half to four dollars a car, for making selections for particular men. Needless to say the cars of superior size are selected, thus enabling the favored one to ship several tons of produce at considerably less rates than the man must pay who fails to make this concession. The managers of extensive works are occasionally heard to boast that they fly time from men in their employ by having the whistle, which calls to work, blown several minutes in advance of the hour set. "Thus you see," one laconically remarked a few days ago, "we get about five or six minutes' time from each man every day for which we do not pay, and with fifteen hundred men in the course of a year we save considerable." He will mark his next step in the evolution in honesty by learning to hold his tongue, and will, therefore, be a more "honest" man next time. The unsophisticated rancher must needs inspect the hay buyer's tape line when he comes to purchase hay and detail a man to camp on the same side of the stack to be measured or he will find that it shrinks unaccountably. It would be a reflection on the imitative powers of mankind if, under the educating influence of example, the buyer did not soon have to take some precautions as well as the seller, but it takes time to gain the alertness acquired by practice, and it is owing to the important matter of time that man shows his really superior ability in the variety and extent of his thieving propensities to the average woman. He has the start.

The fact that one of the parties to a business transaction be a woman, possibly a pleasing one, and one of the sort of which man easily becomes enamored, cuts no figure in the amount of honesty or dishonesty displayed, and if she happens to be ignorant of the ordinary "little rules of business" and have imbibed an exaggerated idea of the height of the "pedestal" on which man's fond illusions have placed her, she will come down rather suddenly. Whether her descent will be graceful or otherwise will depend largely on the amount of common sense she may be endowed with. All of which does not mean that women are habitually thieves or that men are all scamps, but rather, that in the real struggle for existence man must exercise the ingenuity by which brain matter was evolved in order to compete successfully with his fellow man, and that woman in the very same struggle is devolving on the self-same lines.

The supposition that these lines are modified to any serious extent by the accident of sex is not borne out either by observation or experience. L. A.

District Court.

In the District Court yesterday in the case of F. M. Toler vs. J. N. Evans, the jury returned a verdict for plaintiff and assessed the damage at $250.

In the case of Hymers and others against Fitzgerald and Lemery judgment was entered for plaintiffs upon stipulation.

All jurors in attendance were excused until next Tuesday at 10 o'clock A. M.

The case of Weldon vs. Weldon was continued until Monday, October 3, at 10 o'clock A. M.

The several parties under indictment are required to enter their several pleas at the calling of court this morning.

Nevada Fruit for Chicago.

W. H. Joy shipped last night by express to James A. Yerington, who is in charge of Nevada's exhibit at the World's Fair, over forty varieties of apples and pears. The greater part of the fruit was grown on the farm of Wm. Riley, a few miles south of Reno. The samples were very carefully packed and plainly marked. If the exhibit goes through without accident it will astonish the Eastern people who have been educated to look upon Nevada as a desert.

TRAMPS MADE HAPPY.

If They are Peaceable, Trampmen Will Not Molest Them.

We do not propose to make a fight against the hordes of tramps that are heading for our westbound freight trains," said First Vice-President Crocker of the Southern Pacific Company Saturday to an Examiner reporter. "There is no use putting them off, for they will get on again in sufficient numbers to overpower the trampmen, and the easiest way out of the difficulty is just to let them alone. Of course we give no permission for these people to mount our freight cars, but our freight trains must be moved, and so long as these men are peaceable our trampmen will not molest them. If we tried to put these men off at towns along the route, the people of those places would strenuously object."

The course outlined by Mr. Crocker, says the Truckee Republican, is the one adopted on most of the Eastern roads where long freight hauls prevail. The consolidation of the tramp forces into small armies is of comparatively recent date. For a time the trampmen were armed and were instructed to resist encroachments of the box-car tourists. Many sanguinary encounters occurred and the trampmen, contending against great odds, held out as long as they could, but at last had to succumb. They found that they were able to successfully cope with small groups of stragglers, but that in the end their efforts came to naught. When they put four or five tramps off that gang would wander along until reinforced by as many more, and when ten or fifteen of these "free lance tourists" again boarded a train they gave notice that they would not be denied, and the trampmen were powerless to balk them in their purpose. The railroad companies concluded that it was as cheap to carry the tramps in squads as in platoons, and so gave over all efforts to keep them off the trains.

THE MIDWINTER FAIR.

The Governor to Take an Interest in the Matter.

The following letter received at the headquarters of the Midwinter Fair has been made public:

STATE OF NEVADA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
CARSON CITY, Sept. 23, 1893.
M. H. de Young, Esq., Director-General, San Francisco, Cal. DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 18th inst., officially notifying the people of Nevada of the Midwinter Exposition to be held in your city, commencing Jan. 1, 1894, and soliciting their co-operation.

Replying to which, permit me to say that it will be a very pleasant duty for me to publicly call the attention of the citizens of our State to the importance of this enterprise and the necessity of prompt action on their part in embracing this opportunity of demonstrating the extent and value of our mines, the great area and wonderful richness of our farming lands and the superior quality of our agricultural products.

I shall also communicate with our World's Fair Commissioner at Chicago with a view of transferring a greater portion of our exhibit there, and have no doubt but that, with the energy and enterprise for which the people of our Silver State are noted, an exhibit will be made worthy of the occasion.

I accept with thanks your kind invitation to me personally, and will certainly be in attendance.

Yours, very respectfully,
ROSWELL K. COLCORD,
Governor.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg and doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

The Mistakes

Of life are many—some great, others small. We classify them as we feel their effect, and just in the same way you recognize Simmons' Liver Regulator when taken for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness. There can be no mistake in taking the Regulator for these disorders. It quickly relieves. Don't make the mistake of getting anything else for Malaria.

The Silver State says a confidence man named J. W. Olds, who represented himself as agent of the Pacific States Loan Company of San Francisco, ran a large bill at the Lafayette hotel at Winnemucca and skipped by the light of the moon. He was arrested at Lovelocks.

The Virginia Chronicle says. The Miners Union of Gold Hill held an election Wednesday to decide the question of reducing wages. The counting of the vote after the polls closed disclosed the following result: Thirty-seven votes cast for $4; 107 votes for $3.50. This vote is understood to be decisive as far as the Gold Hill Union is concerned.

Edward Hosking of Grass Valley, who is charged with a felonious crime, was captured at Dutch Flat. The Truckee Republican says he had been in Reno several days and thought by retracing his steps he would elude the officers. His bail was fixed at $2,000 in default of which he went to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.
